

Section 17. In the foreground, several men sit on chairs at tables in a street-side restaurant. Above them, the river flows upward and out of view. On the street, which follows the river's course, a wheelwright and his apprentice work in their small shop. The wheelwright gently taps the wooden sections of the wheel onto the spokes with a mallet, while his apprentice readies new wooden sections. They are making a wheelbarrow, whose frame lies at their feet.